Honorable Allen Dulles, Director

Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Mr. Dulles:

During the past year, my Company has from time to time delivered Gray Audograph recording and dictating machines to CIA without knowing where or how they were to be used. While we are in no way curious about your operations it seems to me that, given the opportunity, we might be able to demonstrate unique ways in which the portable, versatile Audograph might be able to better serve your organization. Also, our Research and Development people are constantly coming up with new and better ways to do recording jobs of all kinds, including certain special devices of a security nature.

Would it be possible for you to direct me or others in our organization with top security clearance to the proper people in CIA with whom we might discuss Audograph use? Such a contact would, I believe, benefit your people and ours.

Sincerely,

/s/ Bill
